Unit 3: Skills 2

Audio script:

Mi: Ms Hoa said we can discuss the stress we have in our lives on the class forum. So, what stress do you have?

Minh: I'm tired of trying to meet my parents expectations. They want me to study well and be good at many things, so they send me to many classes like maths, English, piano, and karate.

Ann: Why don't you tell them your interests and abilities, Minh? I talked to my parents about this so they no longer send me to classes I don't like. Now I just focus on my health and try to lose some weight.

Minh: You look fit, Ann. You should feel good about your body.

Ann: Are you kidding, Mi? I still need to lose a few more kilos. How about you, Mi?

Mi: Actually, I don't get on with my sister. She is jealous of anything I have and always starts arguments. So I had to talk to my mum...

Unit 4: Skills 2

Audio script:

Ethnic minority children might live the life different from that of most Kinh children. They spend some of their time helping their parents inside and outside the house. They learn to work from an early age, usually at six. Girls help look after the house, care for smaller children, weave clothing, and prepare food. Boys learn to do what their fathers do. They grow crops, raise the family's livestock, and catch fish.

In the evening, the family often gathers round the open fire. Children listen to stories or legends of heroes from their grandparents. They also listen to adults talk about their work. This is how the elders pass on traditions and knowledge to their children.

Nowadays, more and more minority children are going to school. There, they meet children from other ethnic groups. They play new games and learn new things.

Local traditions and customs are important parts of a community's culture. They can be very different from one place to another and show the history of each area. For example, many places have festivals that are a big part of their local culture. These festivals often have special foods, dances, and ceremonies that are unique to each place.

People also celebrate holidays in different ways. Some places have traditional festivals for each season, while others celebrate important historical or religious events. For instance, many cultures celebrate New Year's Day on January 1st, but some have their own special dates for the new year based on their traditions.

Local customs can also affect everyday life. In some places, people might greet each other with a special handshake or use certain phrases that show their cultural values. The way people dress, what they eat, and the music they enjoy can all be influenced by local customs.

Even with these differences, people who follow these traditions often feel a strong sense of community and belonging. Learning about and respecting local customs can help build good relationships between people from different backgrounds.

Question 33. What is the main idea of the reading passage?

A. Local traditions are the same everywhere.

B. Local traditions are different and show the history of each place.

C. Festivals are the only important part of local culture.

Question 13. A. traditional B. tradition C. traditionally D. traditions

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the following questions from 14 to 18 .

Local traditions and customs are important parts of a community's culture. They can be very different from one place to another and show the history of each area. For example, many places have festivals that are a big part of their local culture. These festivals often have special foods, dances, and ceremonies that are unique to each place.

People also celebrate holidays in different ways. Some places have traditional festivals for each season, while others celebrate important historical or religious events. For instance, many cultures celebrate New Year's Day on January 1st, but some have their own special dates for the new year based on their traditions.

Local customs can also affect everyday life. In some places, people might greet each other with a special handshake or use certain phrases that show their cultural values. The way people dress, what they eat, and the music they enjoy can all be influenced by local customs.

Even with these differences, people who follow these traditions often feel a strong sense of community and belonging. Learning about and respecting local customs can help build good relationships between people from different backgrounds.

LISTENING

Unit 3: Skills 2

Audio script:

Mi: Ms Hoa said we can discuss the stress we have in our lives on the class forum. So, what stress do you have?

Minh: I'm tired of trying to meet my parents expectations. They want me to study well and be good at many things, so they send me to many classes like maths, English, piano, and karate.

Ann: Why don't you tell them your interests and abilities, Minh? I talked to my parents about this so they no longer send me to classes I don't like. Now I just focus on my health and try to lose some weight.

Minh: You look fit, Ann. You should feel good about your body.

Ann: Are you kidding, Mi? I still need to lose a few more kilos. How about you, Mi?

Mi: Actually, I don't get on with my sister. She is jealous of anything I have and always starts arguments. So I had to talk to my mum...

Unit 4: Skills 2

Audio script:

Ethnic minority children might live the life different from that of most Kinh children. They spend some of their time helping their parents inside and outside the house. They learn to work from an early age, usually at six. Girls help look after the house, care for smaller children, weave clothing, and prepare food. Boys learn to do what their fathers do. They grow crops, raise the family's livestock, and catch fish.

In the evening, the family often gathers round the open fire. Children listen to stories or legends of heroes from their grandparents. They also listen to adults talk about their work. This is how the elders pass on traditions and knowledge to their children.

Nowadays, more and more minority children are going to school. There, they meet children from other ethnic groups. They play new games and learn new things.
