Every year on April 22nd, we celebrate Earth Day! It's a special day to remember our amazing (11) _____ and how important it is to take care of it.

Earth Day started in 1970. Back then, many people were worried about pollution and how humans were harming the environment. Earth Day was a way to (12) _____ awareness and show the world that we need to protect our planet.

Today, Earth Day is a (13) _____ event. People in all corners of the world come together to celebrate Earth. There are a wide range of activities schools can get involved in. First, schools often organize tree planting in the school yard. This teaches students about growing things and helps the environment. Forming Clean Up Crew is also a great idea. Many schools hold clean-up events around the school grounds or even in local parks. It's a fun way to get active and make a real difference by picking up litter. Additionally, students can make posters about protecting Earth or use recycled (14) _____ to create something great. Earth Day offers a chance for students to take their students on nature walks or hold presentations by environmental experts.

Earth Day is a reminder that we all share this planet. By working together, we can make a difference and ensure a healthy Earth for ourselves and future (15) _____.

Task 2. Read the passage and do the following tasks. (1.0 pts)

Today, computers are widely used and can be found in a variety of settings, including homes, offices, shops, hospitals and schools. People rely on computers so heavily that many of them get frustrated and cannot work when computers are "down". Nowadays, computers are so essential that they are utilised for everything from entertainment to navigation.

Computers of today are much quicker, cheaper, and smaller than those of the past. Many modern computers are so small that they are the size of a deck of cards. Users can work from a variety of settings thanks to notebook computers, also known as "ultra-lights," and hand-held Personal Data Assistants (PDAs). These computers' ability to connect to several networks allows users to access information from any location with greater ease and control over their time.

Future computers will be smaller and faster than current models. They may have “smart” or artificial intelligence features like expert intelligence, neural network pattern recognition, or natural language capabilities, and they may be as small as coins. These features will make it simpler for users to interface with computers and manage a large amount of data from fax, email, Internet, and phone sources. Wearable computers, DNA computers, virtual reality gadgets, quantum computers, and optical computers are just a few examples of the cutting-edge applications that are emerging today.

Task 2. Read the passage and do the following tasks. (1.0 pts)

Do you ever throw away any electronic waste (or e-waste)? Perhaps you have some old technology that doesn't work, like an out-of-date phone or a slow computer. But when you throw away these objects, do you know where they go? The reporter Peter Essick has followed this e-waste to different countries around the world.

Essick found a lot of e-waste in Ghana, with thousands of old computers in the local markets. Here, the sellers resell a few computers, but they can't sell many because a lot of them don't work. Instead, the sellers melt some parts of the computers to recycle the metal. These parts don't have much metal, but sometimes there is a little gold inside.

Unfortunately, recycling the metal can be dangerous because it produces a lot of chemicals that are bad for workers' health. As a result, Essick thinks we shouldn't send any e-waste to other countries. It's bad for the environment, and it's bad for people's health. He believes we need to produce more environmentally-friendly electronics in the future; in other words, electronic products that you can recycle safely and in the country where they were made or sold.

Write T (True) or F (False). (0.4 pt)
