Passage 2

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions.

Making the leap from school to university

Getting into university is an important event for young people. While most students are excited about it, they should also be aware of the difference between university and school.

At school, most of your learning is done in the classroom. Teachers give you regular assignments and provide support and resources to help you complete them. Meanwhile, most of your learning at university involves self-studying and project work that you need to plan and complete by a certain date. It is your responsibility to review lecture notes, read textbooks, and do research to find information in the library or online.

Your relationships at school are often limited to schoolmates or classmates. You interact with them mostly in a school environment; therefore, your group of friends is small and very familiar. By contrast, at university, you not only have more contacts, but you also meet people from different backgrounds. Therefore, you need better social skills to deal with any conflict you may come into when interacting with other people.

As a secondary school student, you also live with your parents who provide you with the daily care and support you need. You don't have to worry about things such as shopping or cooking for yourself. You have your parents take care of your physical and mental well-being. Once you go to university, you will probably move away from home and start to live independently. You need to improve your life skills so that you can manage your own life.

Question 1. What is the text mainly about?

- A. A comparison between school life and university life.
B. An explanation why university life is more interesting.
C. Advice on how to leap into university life.
D. A report on the difficulties of university life.

- A. people you know B. physical interactions you have
C. people you want to contact D. social benefits you have

Question 4. Which of the following is NOT true according to the text?

- A. Students will know more people from different places at university.
B. At school, students rarely receive support from teachers to complete their homework.
C. At university, students need to be more responsible for their own learning.

D. Students need good life skills to live independently at university.

Question 5. What do students need to manage once they go to university?

A. Their own life

B. Their family's life

C. Their school assignments

D. Their social life

Question 6. What is the responsibility of students at university?

A. Attend social events

B. Participate in group activities

C. Complete assignments given by teachers

D. Review lecture notes, read textbooks, and do research

Question 7. What is the main difference between learning at school and learning at university?

A. Learning at school involves more individual work, while learning at university involves more group work

B. Learning at school involves self-studying and project work, while learning at university is done in the classroom

C. Learning at school is done in the classroom, while learning at university involves self-studying and project work

D. Learning at school involves more social interaction, while learning at university is more individual

Passage 3

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions.

The job market is extremely competitive and skilled employees are high in demand. In fact, degrees are required for a wide range of careers such as Medicine and Education. A university education will help young people succeed in today's workforce and establish an enjoyable career of their choice.

University education helps you improve prospects for life. University graduates gain professional qualifications that are recognised and respected worldwide. Besides, they are offered higher pay and greater financial stability. In addition, they are also given the option to fast-track their career with graduate study.

University education also helps students learn and discover. It exposes students to new research and technology. Studying at university encourages creative and independent thought as well. And university life exposes students to other cultures and backgrounds through training activities, such as student exchange programmes.

Studying at university, students conquer intellectual challenges and develop a sense of achievement. University builds initiative and leadership skills that can be used for life. That is why university education has always been in many school-leavers' plan after school.

Passage 4

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions.

Educating children at home as an alternative to formal education is an option chosen by families in many parts of the world. The homeschooling movement is popular in the United States, where close to one million Children are educated at home. In Canada, 1 percent of school-age children are homeschooled, and the idea also enjoys growing popularity in Australia, where 20,000 families homeschool their children. The movement is not limited to these countries. Homeschooling families can be found all over the world, from Japan to Taiwan to Argentina to South Africa.

Homeschooling is not a novel idea. In fact, the idea of sending children to spend most of their day away from home at a formal school is a relatively new custom. In the United States, for example, it was not until the latter part of the nineteenth century that state governments began making school attendance compulsory. Before that, the concept of a formal education was not so widespread. Children learned the skills they would need for adult life at home from tutors or their parents, through formal instruction or by working side by side with the adults of the family.

In the modern developed world, where the vast majority of children attend school, families choose homeschooling for a variety of reasons. For people who live in remote areas, such as the Australian outback or the Alaskan Wilderness, homeschooling may be their only option. Children who have exceptional talents in the arts or other areas may be homeschooled so that they have more time to devote to their special interests. Much of the homeschooling movement is made up of families who, for various reasons, are dissatisfied with the schools available to them. They may have a differing educational philosophy, they may be concerned about the safety of the school environment, or they may feel that the local schools cannot adequately address their children's educational needs. Although most families continue to choose a traditional classroom education for their children, homeschooling as an alternative educational option is becoming more popular.

Question 1: Which of the following could be the main idea of the passage?

- A. A new form of school: Homeschooling
- B. Homeschool option: a common form of education all over the world.
- C. The reasons why children should be educated at home.
- D. The origin of Homeschooling.

Question 2: What does the word "that" in paragraph 2 refer to?

- A. the second half of the 19th century
- B. the beginning of the 19th century
- C. the former part of the 19th century
- D. the end of the 19th century

Question 3: The word "widespread" in paragraph 2 mostly means _____.

- A. uncommon
- B. customary
- C. exceptional
- D. prevalent

Question 4: According to the passage, the following are true about the Homeschooling, EXCEPT _____.

Passage 5

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions.

Australians place a high value on independence and personal choice. This means that a teacher or course tutor will not tell students what to do, but will give them a number of options and suggest they work out which one is the best in their circumstances. It also means that they are expected to take action if something goes wrong and seek out resources and support for themselves.

Australians are also prepared to accept a range of opinions rather than believing there is one truth. This means that in an educational setting, students will be expected to form their own opinions and defend the reasons for that point of view and the evidence for it.

Australians are uncomfortable with differences in status and hence idealise the idea of treating everyone equally. An illustration of this is that most adult Australians call each other by their first names. This concern with equality means that Australians are uncomfortable taking anything too seriously and are even ready to joke about themselves.

Australians believe that life should have a balance between work and leisure time. As a consequence, some students may be critical of others who they perceive as doing nothing but study.

Australian notions of privacy mean that areas such as financial matters, appearance and relationships are only discussed with close friends. While people may volunteer such information, they may resent someone actually asking them unless the friendship is firmly established. Even then, it is considered very impolite to ask someone what they earn. With older people, it is also rude to ask how old they are, why they are not married or why they do not have children. It is also impolite to ask people how much they have paid for something, unless there is a very good reason for asking.
