The Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) is a special part of the United Nations. It was created to defeat hunger and improve nutrition around the world. FAO wants to make sure that people always have enough high-quality food to live healthy lives. Today, it works in over 130 countries, helping farmers grow more food.

In Viet Nam, FAO works closely with local farmers to solve big problems in agriculture. One of its main goals is to help farmers grow better crops, like rice and coffee. It aims to make sure that food is safe and farming does not harm the environment. Furthermore, FAO helps farmers deal with bad weather and natural disasters. It gives them new seeds and teaches them modern farming skills. This helps farmers produce more food and make more money. FAO also focuses on food security for children. The organization wants to ensure that every child gets enough healthy food to grow up strong. By sharing smart farming ideas, FAO ensures that the poorest people in society are protected from hunger. Through hard work and support from many countries, FAO continues to make a big difference. Their work shows that ending world hunger is possible if we all work together.

READING 3: Mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the following questions.

Digital technology has transformed the way students approach their education. In the past, learning was limited to physical textbooks and classroom lectures. Today, the internet provides a vast ocean of knowledge accessible at the click of a button. [I] This shift has led to the rise of online learning platforms where students can customize their study schedule to fit their personal lives. [II]

One major advantage of modern education is the flexibility it offers. For instance, blended learning allows students to combine online self-study with traditional face-to-face interaction. [III] This method encourages learners to take responsibility for their own progress. If a student finds a particular topic difficult, they can re-watch instructional videos multiple times until they fully understand it. [IV] This level of autonomy was rarely seen in traditional settings.

Furthermore, technology fosters the spirit of lifelong learning. With mobile apps and online certificates, education is no longer just for the young or those enrolled in formal schools. People of all ages can now acquire new skills, from coding to cooking, at any stage of their lives. This continuous development is essential in a rapidly changing job market where old skills can quickly become obsolete.

However, the digital transition is not without obstacles. The "digital divide" remains a serious issue, as many students in rural areas lack the necessary devices or stable internet connections. Educators believe that technology should be a tool for inclusion. Therefore, governments and organizations are working together to bridge this gap, ensuring that every child has an equal opportunity to thrive in the digital age.
